It is tempting to think of authority and law as necessary only because of human selfishness, inconstancy, weakness or intransigence. The truth, however, is that the...1would be necessary to co-ordinate the behaviour of members of the community for the sake of the common good even in a society of angels. Of course, in such a society...2—the threat of punishment for law-breaking- would be unnecessary; but ...3themselves would still be needed. Given that no earthy society is a society of angels, legal sanctions- quite reasonably-universal features of...4.
