OF THE NATIONAL HYBRID SEMINAR ON INTERFACE SCIENCES
CHEMISTRY–BIOLOGY
4HNSISCB'26

OBJECTIVE

The fourth edition of the Hybrid National Seminar on Interface Sciences in Chemistry–Biology (4HNSISCB'26) is part of a scientific, educational, and collaborative dynamic.

Its main objective is to foster interdisciplinary exchanges between chemistry and biology in order to promote scientific innovation and the development of new approaches in the fields of health, environment, and biotechnology.

This national meeting will encourage scientific collaboration among researchers, teachers, and students, and will create a space for exchange and discussion to share ideas, experiences, and methodologies. The selected themes reflect the research activities carried out within our laboratory.

This event will help strengthen ties among Algerian researchers by highlighting recent work and advances, with the aim of promoting innovation through showcasing practical applications at the chemistry–biology interface, and enhancing participants' skills through conferences, workshops, and scientific presentations.
